1. Your partner repeatedly talks over you during a group science project. Which response uses a healthy 'I-Statement'?

Answer: B. 'I feel frustrated when I get interrupted because my ideas aren't heard. Can we please take turns speaking?'

Option B expresses feelings without blaming ('I feel frustrated when... Can we please take turns?'), which de-escalates tension and invites collaboration.

2. Two students both want to be the team captain in gym class kickball. What is a fair WIN-WIN compromise?

Answer: C. One student captains today's game, and the other student captains tomorrow's game.

Taking turns across different games ensures fairness and mutually respects both students' desire to lead.
