1. Name two groups with different needs.

Answer: readers and game players

2. What does the quiet-hour proposal reserve?

Answer: one quiet hour each evening

3. Give a reason supporting the quiet hour.

Look for:

- Relates the reason to a stakeholder.

One possible response: Readers can concentrate during a predictable time.

4. Give a concern about reserving the room.

Look for:

- Recognizes another group's needs.

One possible response: Players lose access during that time.

5. Suggest a schedule responding to both groups.

Look for:

- Makes the arrangement clear.
- Considers both uses.

One possible response: Set one quiet hour and other times for games.

6. What should the group check after trying the schedule?

Look for:

- Suggests relevant feedback rather than assuming success.

One possible response: Whether people can use it fairly and whether the timing works.

Open responses use criteria and an illustrative response. Other well-supported responses can be acceptable.
